To The RESIDENTS of Fairfax County in particular, and the PUBLIC in general.

IN Compliance with my promise, as published in the Alexandria Daily Advertiser on Saturday the 18th instant---- The following is a fair and true statement (in part) of the facts therein alluded to, as respects the former and late conduct of Geo. Summers towards me; perhaps some persons might expect some answer from, or notice taken by me of G. Summers's piece of the 22d instant &c. When I promised a statement of facts founded on truth, I by no means intended by giving them to the public, to enter the field of scandal and blackguardism to give them currency, consequently cannot notice that production in this way, but leave the reward to which its merits are peculiarly intitled, to be measured to its patron by legal authority. It was truly painful to me, to find myself compelled to the most disagreeable alternative of resorting to the public prints, but the conduct of the man compelled the measure, a candid public, will I hope, consider with attention the simple statement now about to be submitted to their consideration free from any unfavorable impressions, or prejudices which may have been made, or created by the declarations and backbitings of the said George Summers, and while they peruse the narative let them apply the case to themselves, and then determine whether or not, I had grounds for the charges complained of against him, viz. "ingratitude, malice, false accusations, meanness, and baseness." I am in the country where I was born, and have resided upwards of fifty two years, from the year 1780 to the present moment, I have acted in public office---to those longest acquainted with me, and particularly to those with whom I have transacted the most public business, I now appeal as to my conduct—and as I am unaccustomed to matters in this way, and meaning to make my statement in as short a manner as possible, so as to comprehend such facts as hath been referred to and grow out of the premises, I must persue that method which to me appears most familiar, and least any part might be lost sight of (when I come to speak of George Summers's answer to my bill &c.) I shall apply the contradictions to each seperately as I go, nor shall all the airs he gives himself deter or prevent my publishing the same, and which I submit as follows:

Some time in the latter part of 1783, or early in 1784, George Summers (who then resided on a farm, the property of William Herbert esq.) applied to me in a very supplicating and moving manner, to try to prevail on my father Mr. John Ratcliffe, to take him as assistant deputy sheriff, in place of Caleb Earp, who then resided with the said John Ratcliff, as such, for that he George Summers was likely to get involved in debt, for rent of the farm aforesaid, promising how well he would conduct himself &c. On which I did apply to my father on the subject, stating the aforesaid application, when my father most pointedly refused in the first instance, (his objections I omit to mention) but on my pressing solicitations, he at length did agree to take him at the expiration of Caleb Earp's year, in consequence of which the said George Summers, with his wife and children were removed to the house of my father, and then was qualified and taken as an assistant; my father as appears agreed to allow him one half of the profits arising from the office within Truro parish, which my said father was intitled to.——George Summers continued to act under my father's directions on those terms as appears, until some time in 1785, when it further appears he did prevail on my father to give him all his profits, conditioned he the said Geo. Summers would settle pay his rent & taxes, and collect and account for all the balances due him the said J. Ratcliffe &c. Nothing disagreeable that I now recollect had taken place from his entering on the duty aforesaid until early in the year 1785, when my father with whom I had large running accounts, wrote me a very angry and disagreeable letter, stating charges of attempts in me, to take advantages of him in accounts, I soon after furnished my father with a copy of my accounts, which appeared to give satisfaction, in some short time after I again received repeated letters from my father, dicated with apparent anger, and charging me with attempts to rogue and defraud him. Not having ever before George Summers resided with my father, been accustomed to any disputes in our accounts,--- or ever received such letters from him; I could not but suspect George Summers was in some measure the cause, I spoke to George Summers on the subject, and to satisfy him that I had cause of complaint, I either delivered or enclosed him one of the aforesaid letters desiring him to shew it to his wife. Thus he attained the possession thereof, and which letter hath remained in his possession ever since, as far as I know.

On the ninth day of Jan. one thousand seven hundred and eighty six, subsequent to receiving and delivering of said letter from my father to George Summers, I waited on my father at his house with my accounts, and then and there in the presence of George Summers made a fair, just & amicable settlement of said accounts to that day, which settlement was signed by my father and myself, and witnessed by George Summers.

On the fourth day of November 1786, George Summers and myself settled all our accounts both of private and public concern, including his accounts against the county, as rendered and ready to be referred to, in which accounts against the county, are contained not only charges for payments made the county creditors, but for all services by [permitted] him performed on criminal prosecutions, about which time he was offering to act for me as assistant deputy sheriff, the ensuing year as my father had then declined acting any longer in such business, and I had farmed the said sheriff's office of colonel Gilpin for 1787, and 1788, in which office col. Gilpin entered November court, one thousand seven hundred and eighty six. Not at that time knowing any thing of the ungrateful conduct of George Summers towards me, in causing my father's displeasure, as hereafter will be explained, and in order still to serve him, I did agree to give him 75l. (25 more than I got others at) to perform the duty of deputy sheriff in a very small district not one fourth of the county, for the faithful performance of which he gave me his bond. Before the end of the year I discovered that all the business which Geo. Summers had undertaken by said bond to perform, would not be executed (he then acting as sergeant of Alexandria also,) I applied to him frequently to use his endeavors to complete said collections, and for which he had stopped in his hands (out of the public and other monies by him received and to be paid to me,) quarterly, the 75l. altho' it was not to have been paid until the expiration of the year, and the completion of his undertaking aforesaid, as a reference to his bond and written offer to me will prove, nor was the whole of the service performed at November '88 two years after his undertaking, and one year after he had stopped the whole of his wages as aforesaid, at which time November '88, he returned me a book with a certified statement that it contained a true account &c. which had passed through his hands (except a part of the revenue) from Nov. '86, to Nov. '88. In consequence of my insisting on him to perform what he had agreed to do, and what I had paid him for, he determined, as he thought, to injure me by publishing that he collected and paid to me large sums of money received from persons not listed by the commissioners of the revenue, over and above what would make good for delinquents &c.——which caused orders of court to be made and commissioners to be appointed to settle the sheriffs accounts——here let me remark, that no discovery or receiving of this kind, could by any means have injured me, because Geo. Summers's bond bound him to collect and pay to me all such sums of money, &c. as by law I was bound to pay, and 5 per cent. thereon, therefore I was not, nor could not be injured by his having received more than the amount of the tax list; but would have afforded an accumulation of profit of 5 per cent. on all additional sums, but his then idea was, that an excess had been received, & that I should be wholly benefitted by settling agreeable to the tax list, and monopolizing such excess; therefore, like the dog with the ox, as he could not have the supposed advantage, he could not bear that I should, &c.

Sunday, disappointments took place before the said commissioners acted on adjusting said accounts, a very small part of which collections, came under my knowledge, as I had employed three assistants in making them, and did very little relative to the sheriff's business, except settling all the public accounts with parish clerks, auditors, &c. during these transactions, and previous to June, 1790, finding many difficulties in setting my accounts with two of those I had employed, (Geo. Summers one of them) propositions were at length made of lumping the business, and giving up to them what ballances were due, and taking a certain sum in consideration thereof. While on these contracts a meeting was proposed by two of the commissioners to settle said sheriff's accounts, and a written notice from two of said commissioners to me, was sent by Geo. Summers, who for reasons best known to himself, withheld said notice until 11 o'clock of the day on which the notice was given to, and not only withheld the same, but in a letter of the same day written, which covered the notice aforesaid, he advised me not to submit the adjustment of the sheriff's accounts to such men as those two commissioners, for that they were full of prejudice towards me, and that he had withheld the notice purposely—for what this conduct was calculated, I can but one way solve, viz: he Geo. Summers wished first to have made some kind of settlement, and obtain some discharge before the accounts were settled, and thereby get exonerated from any further liability, &c. on the 29th of June, 1790, we did make a partial settlement, but leaving still open for adjustment sundry transactions not then clearly ascertained, as by the certificate that that day passed, will prove, and to be referred to; subsequent to said 29th of June, 1790, the commissioners again appointed to meet on the business aforesaid, when they were met by me and the aforesaid collectors; at which time the disappointment beforementioned was spoken of by the commissioners to me, I gave for answer the above circumstance of not receiving the notice, and further stated Geo. Summers's declarations of their strong prejudices, &c. He then had the hardness, and most positively did say he never had made such a charge, but having then, (as I now have) the possession of his letter aforesaid, I produced it, which proved my assertion---after some pauses, he then did assert, and since hath sworn, that he had no knowledge what caused him to write me as aforesaid, unless I had persuaded him, or made him believe so, (a sweep) the accounts were adjusted and reported, as appeared to three of the commissioners, ascertained by the different collectors books. Some short time previous to said adjustment, I had plainly discovered that I had not received even as much of the collections of 87, from Geo. Summers, as I had actually paid and accounted for, and spoke of it to him and others, he then began to find he was likely to be detected, but to try to prevent my investigating such a measure, and knowing how averse I was to law, he instituted a suit in chancery against me, for a then set up claim, for a large part of the profits, which had arose for services by me, and at my sole expence performed for criminal prosecutions in 85 and 86. On the 6th day of November, 1795, I told Geo. Summers that he had committed an error, that such a suit was ill-founded and vexatious, that if he did not dismiss it, and pay costs, I would instantly institute an action in chancery and thereby prove I never had received any concealed money, (meaning knowingly) but that he knew such a step would be disagreeable to me, but certainly would be done, if he refused to dismiss. He refused to do so, the consequence was, the institution of a suit by me, and I immediately answered his bill, but could get no answer from him to my bill, until I attached therefor---in my bill I prayed for a fair adjustment of all our accounts, including all his public transactions, and that what should appear to have been received by Geo. Summers from conceals (after paying what I by law was bound to pay, and had paid) he should be decreed to pay to the county and public, as I did not ask one farthing more than my own. The first suit he brought was dismissed, he brought a second, we proceeded to take depositions, and were nearly ready for trial, when he dismissed his second suit, and gave me notice he should bring it again in the high court of chancery, and that on a certain day in said notice mentioned, he should apply to the chancellor at his office in Richmond, for a certiorari to remove my suit against him; all to try to harrass and perplex me, and prevent if possible, the adjustment of our accounts and publication of his conduct; but being at that time determined to pursue him to conviction, I immediately wrote to general Marshall to take my causes if they should be carried there. I obtained his answer, that I might depend on him, and in a second letter received from him, he informed me that a subpoena was issued, but no other proceedings had thereon. G. Summers then finding that I would not be intimidated or prevented, taking a fair and full investigation, was compelled to lower his tone,..... and embrace the last alternative, that of soliciting major West, (now deceased) to interfere and try to bring about a dismission of my suit against him, which was major West now living, he could prove, as he told me that Geo. Summers had frequently importuned him on the subject; having to take the deposition of one gentleman, relative to Geo. Summers's han writing and signatures in many instances, and was the last I had to take, having given notice thereof, on attending for that purpose, where I had convened two justices, George Summers, with major West and Mr. Minor, also attended, and when about to proceed to the business, I was applied to, to come to some compromise, and gave for answer that I did not institute the suit against George Summers purely to recover money, though a large sum was justly due me, but to prove by the event, to the world, my innocence of the charge of having received and unaccounted for public money, and that nothing short of an acquittance from that charge could induce me to dismiss said suit. Major West was very pressing for an accommodation (with all the apparent marks of approbation of George Summers) and on the certification of himself and Mr. Minor (two of the commissioners who had reported the sheriff's accounts aforesaid) that they were well acquainted with the nature of the suits, and that they would end in my final justification, which other gentlemen also present declared to be their opinion, and on the said George Summers then and there giving from under his hand, stating that he never knew me make a misapplication of public money in his life, and further offering and agreeing to pay all costs of both suits, and to pay a small running account I had against him of about 30l. I did agree the suit might be dismissed; four of the gentlemen present witnissing his acknowledgement. Which suit was accordingly dismissed at his cost: for the amount of which, about 130l. he, George Summers, hath since gave me his note, payable on demand; but had it not have been that he married my sister, I never should have consented thereto, altho' he did appear to be convinced of his error. Then I consoled myself (determined to try to bury in oblivion the past) that peace would be restored, at least, to our rising family; nor should I ever have spoke of what I was satisfied had been the moving cause of bringing him to soliciting terms, had I not found out his having again returned to his old trade of backbiting, and in the most malicious manner endeavoring to injure my reputation, by the meanest (but well known to be false) declarations; carrying about and publishing my father's letter heretofore alluded to; together with the deposition of Henry Davis, who, in 1785, resided on my fathers plantation as an overseer, who states having heard my father, about the time of writing said letter, declare to the amount thereof, although he, George Summers, well knew, that the account that letter alluded to, had been justly settled as before stated, and that when my fathers deposition was taken in his, George Summers's, presence, relative to our suits, that my said father, in answer to a question put to him, declared that he was taught to believe from George Summers's declarations, as in the letter stated, and that he was solely moved therefrom to write those letters; but that he had been well convinced he had charged me unjustly: to his deposition, as also to the deposition of Geo. Harrison, who resided on my fathers plantation in 1785, as an overseer, reference is had, and ready to be produced. After all I had done to serve George Summers, thus he was endeavoring to repay me. It is well known to all who knew him at the time I got my father to take him in as an assistant, he was in low circumstances, unacquainted with any kind of business, neither capable of writing, spelling, or stating accounts, which his first transactions (now in my possession) will prove. My father and myself did all we could to assist him, in every sense of the word, and when my father agreed to give all his profits to him, I did not object, or say one word against it, which had I have done, would have altered his situation; for, notwithstanding all he could say and do, in so malicious and mean a manner (in trying to incense my father against me) he well knows, as doth many gentlemen of the first respectability in the county, that my fathers confidence in me was never withdrawn, and that he could not confide in any one else to adjust, direct, and settle all his large accounts, not only with clerks, county, parish, and in Richmond, but with many of the gentlemen of the county, who had large accounts to settle, and which will in due time be made to appear. Was I disposed to publish to the world my fathers opinion, which he entertained of George Summers for many years, I have ample means to do so; but I scorn to state them; they are family concerns: he, George Summers, or his friends, may satisfy themselves (if doubted) by application to me. Before I attend to the particulars of George Summers's answer to my bill aforesaid, I will further observe, relative to the charge he has published of having paid large sums of concealed money to me, that it is my opinion he was much deceived in the amount; but it is merely opinion, for I have no further information on the subject than what arose from the accounts stated by him to the commissioners, or by them stated from his information; but if the statement by him given them and reported by said commissioners was correct, and a fair adjustment had taken place, as prayed for in my suit against him; he certainly must have fell in debt largely, upwards of 200l. besides tobacco; but as before stated, as I wish to be fairly understood, I do believe he was under a mistake, nor do I of my own knowledge certainly know what sum he received; but I have the statements now, and ever shall have during my life, to prove that I did not receive by sixty odd pounds, as much as I actually paid for the taxes, &c. for the year 1787, and that not merely my statement, but therewith are filed all the documents relative thereto, or that in the most distant manner concerns the transaction, including orders, reports, sales, &c. and as respects the suit and claim, set up as aforesaid by George Summers. in his bill aforesaid; although he did not, nor was he able to prove, or in any manner substantiate one solitary allegation, as to his claim. Yet, I did not rest until I proved, what in fact was unnecessary (a negative) and by seven depositions (legally and in his, George Summers's presence taken) have in the most full and ample manner, (without the aid of his own paper, from under his hand) proven his whole charge to be unfounded, untrue and vexatious, and which, his bill, my answer, and those depositions, together with his own papers, are all ready to be shewn to prove: and now, painful as I acknowledge it to be, I must proceed to take notice of some parts of his answers to my bill, in which as at first promised, I must be permitted to contrast it as I proceed, and the better to be understood, I shall state the few charges now alluded to, one by one, then his answer and apply the evidence seperately to each charge and answer.

To the worshipful Court of Fairfax, &c. &c. &c.

HUMBLY COMPLAINING, &c.

Your orator, R. Ratcliffe, &c. &c. by George Summers, who your orator prays may be made defendant to his bill of complaint, &c. &c. your orator, further sheweth, that, in the year 1788, the defendant employed James Jenkins, as an assistant, deputy sheriff, and became answerable for his conduct as deputy sheriff; that the said James Jenkins, received of a certain Conner, by virtue of an execution of Lacey and Baily, against said Conner, a certain sum of money, which he failed to pay the whole of, leaving 33l. due the plaintiffs, for which your orator was called on by Mr. P. Bailey, one of the plaintiffs, who referred him to the defendant as the person liable, ultimately, for Jenkins's conduct, but the defendant refusing to pay; your orator was obliged to pay the same.

The defendant to the above answers. The plaintiff alledges that this defendant is indebted to the plaintiff 33l. for money received by James Jenkins, from one Conner, for Lacey and Baily, this defendant denies the alligation, for some time in 1793, the plaintiff informed the defendant of this circumstance, at which time this defendant gave the plaintiff credit for that amount, and for the express purpose, and is actually paid in account with the plaintiff.

Contrast and Proof. In 1790, the defendant wrote the plaintiff to give him a notice, as tho' he was going to move for a judgment against the defendant for that identical 33l. received by James Jenkins, of Conner, for that he, the defendant, wanted to go over to Jenkins's, to try to get it: that so far from the defendants having actually settled for that money, with the plaintiff in '93, as sworn to, June 1796, he owned he never had paid it in '99 and hath given to the plaintiff his obligation to pay the same on demand.

2d. Charge. The said Jenkins, further received from John Coffer, the sum of 65s. 4 1-2 as sheriff for use of your orator, which several sums last mentioned, the defendant at some times appeared disposed to pay, but hath latterly refused altogether to account with your orator for.

Answer. And the plaintiff further alledges that James Jenkins, received from John Coffer 65s. 4 1-2, & this defendant is liable for the same. This defendant well recollects, that the plaintiff made such a charge against this defendant, some time in 1789, and on or about June 1790, this defendant refused payment, alledging that the money was received by Jenkins, at the particular request of the plaintiff, and unknown to this defendant, at which time the plaintiff erased the charge, and subsequent to that time, gave this defendant a release as stated heretofore, meaning thereby, that the plaintiff would look to Jenkins for his money, who he had empowered to receive it; this transaction was done without the knowledge of this defendant, and at the same time, this defendant denies having received one shilling of the money aforesaid, and denies payment for the reasons aforesaid.

Proof, &c. The deposition of John Coffer, &c.

Question by plaintiff. To what sheriff did you carry your execution which you had obtained against Thomas Church. jun. in 1788?

Answer. To Mr. George Summers, who at this deponent's request, sent James Jenkins, who this deponent then understood was the said Summers's deputy, which said Jenkins, served the said execution on some of Church's property.

Question 2d. by plaintiff. Did you allow in discount, out of the proceeds of the sheriff's sale, of Church's property, the sum of 3l. 5s. 4 1-2d. which was by him claimed as due to R. Ratcliffe the plaintiff?

Answer. He did allow it out of the sale to the sheriff.

Question 3d. by plaintiff. From what authority did the sheriff claim that money of you, on behalf of R. Ratcliffe the plaintiff?

Answer. That James Jenkins, at that time shewed to this deponent, a note wrote by Mr. Ratcliffe, the plaintiff, to the defendant, to receive the above sum of 3l. 5s. 4 1-2d. which note the said Jenkins informed this deponent, he received of the defendant that morning, which was directed to the defendant.

Question 4th by plaintiff. Did R. Ratcliffe, the plaintiff, ever claim the 3l. 5s. 4 1-2d. by you paid to the sheriff for his use, after you assured him you had paid it?

Answer. He did not.

Question by defendant. Do you know that this defendant was acquainted with James Jenkins receiving any money from you for the plaintiff.

Answer. I do not know it of my own knowledge, but I obtained a receipt from James Jenkins, the defendant's assistant, some time after the sale, for said sum.

Question 2d. by defendant. Has not the plaintiff demanded of you the money, said to be received by James Jenkins, from you, subsequent to the sale, made by Jenkins, for you in '88?

Answer. He has—but not since he made the plaintiff acquainted that he had paid Mr. Jenkins, in consequence of the note above alluded to.

Question 3d. by defendant. Do you know or believe that you was justly indebted to the plaintiff at the time Jenkins stopped the £. 3 5s. 4 1-2d. from you for the use of the plaintiff?

Answer. Mr. Jenkins did not offer to stop any money for the plaintiff, but shewed me his account enclosed in a letter to the defendant, directing him the defendant, to receive and give a receipt therefor, which he some time after obtained.

Question 5. by the plaintiff. What sum did the defendant inform you had been received by the sheriff and credited or endorsed on your execution, as produced from proceeds of sale.

Answer. That in conversation between the deponent and defendant on the subject, the defendant asked the deponent what was the proceeds of sale, he answered about £. 7 10s. to which the defendant replied, he thought it was about that sum, &c. The defendant after all the above hath acknowledged the plaintiff's claim, and subsequent to the above denial and depositions hath given me his note from under hand to pay on demand the said £. 3 5s. 4 1 2d. and now in my possession.

3d Charge. Your orator further sheweth, that the defendant is indebted to the estate of col. George Mason, deceased, as by his own account, about 400 lbs. tobacco, which tobacco, so due from the defendant, the said Mason charged to your orator, in his life time, and which still remains charged, so that the said estate is indebted to your orator in money, but which he cannot receive until the said tobacco is paid, the payment of which your orator hath often requested the defendant to make, at sundry of which times, he, the defendant, did promise to do so, but still fails, it being for transactions as sheriff, said Mason would only settle one sheriff's account, which hath been always stated with and settled for, the several years when your orator acted as deputy sheriff by your orator. Your orator prays that the defendant be decreed to pay the said tobacco, or what shall be due to your orator, who is answerable to said Mason's estate therefor.

Answer. The plaintiff further alledges that this defendant was indebted to the estate of col. Mason. This defendant agrees that he was indebted to said estate 385 lbs. of transfer tobacco, and the estate was indebted to this defendant 1s. 6d. at the same time, and being informed by the plaintiff that Mason's estate was indebted to him, this defendant gave the plaintiff credit for the tobacco, and charged the plaintiff with 1s. 6d. the plaintiff being indebted to this defendant a large sum of tobacco, as this defendant conceives, and thereby has balanced this defendant's account with Col. Mason's estate.
